SANDAKAN: Elopura Assemblyman Calvin Chong has advised voters who wish to change their polling place to use the online service provided by the Election Commission (SPR).

He said the website allows voters to make changes to their polling place at any time, without the need to visit the SPR office in person.

This is especially convenient for those who have busy schedules or live far from the SPR office.

"With the online system, voter information can be updated directly in the SPR database, which helps streamline the registration process.

"This system also benefits rural voters or those living far from their original polling area, making it easier for them to register at a new location without the need for additional documents or transport costs," he said.

Chong also said that users could find a guide on how to change their polling place on YouTube by searching for "how to change the EC online polling place."

He hoped the availability of this online service would encourage more citizens to register and vote at locations closer to them, ultimately increasing voter participation in elections.
